

Online Course Showcase 2015

Wednesday, September 23, 2015

12:00 – 1:30 p.m.

Oak Room, Student Center

During the Online Course Developers Workshop, and throughout the summer, participants developed high quality, pedagogically sound online courses. At this sixth annual showcase the following faculty will share the noted aspects of their new online courses:

- Laura Rexroth, MUSI 101 Music Fundamentals: Making the audible visible: real-time lectures with the visualizer to teach basic music notation in the digital age;
- Kate Gillogly, SOCA 100 Intro to Anthropology: Using shorter lectures and discussion to stimulate course involvement;
- Teresa Coronado, ENGL 477/478/479 Capstone: Metacognition and Portfolios: Bringing the Capstone experience online;
- Dennis Kaufman, ECON 120 Principles of Microeconomics: Google Docs and Drawing Tools;
- Ed Schmitt, HIST 102 US History: Using brief tutorial videos to model academic skills;
- Tsun-Mei Chang, CHEM 303 Physical Chemistry II: Engaging students with discussion and group work;
- Beth Brownson, HIST 128 Modern World History: Strategies for D2L Group Work and Multiple-choice Quizzes.

Lunch will be provided.

Please RSVP via the online registration form.

This showcase session is sponsored by the Teaching & Learning Center and the Provost's Office.
