

8th Annual Online Course Showcase

Wednesday, October 25, 2017
12:00 – 1:30 p.m.
Learning Tech Lab, WYLL D103

At this showcase participants will have hands-on engagement in a mock-up D2L course. Presenters who completed the Summer Course Development Workshop will discuss the following aspects of their new online courses. Participants will be enrolled in a mock-up version of the presenter's courses.

- Ranis Ibragimov, MATH 368, Mathematical Modeling: a discussion of mathematical modeling
- Mita Banerjee, SOCA 250, Social Statistics: Solving problems using a MS Surface Pro laptop/tablet
- Melissa Gregg, PSYC 250, Cognitive Psychology: Lab 1 assignment; review of lab resources including internal and external videos
- Annie Grugel, EDU 333, Children's Literature and New Literacies: Integrating Community Based Learning within an Online Course Environment
- Tannette Elie, SPCH 105, Public Speaking: Framing most engaging and insightful discussions among my online students

Lunch will be provided. Please RSVP for this hands-on session.

Space is limited and will be awarded on a first-come first-serve basis through the registration process.

This showcase session is sponsored by the Teaching & Learning Center and the Provost's Office.