

Kenosha Community Agencies

The following list may help teachers and students at various points in the service-learning process and is intended to be a jumping-off point for finding potential partners. You might consider contacting an organization/agency to:

- Inquire how your students could help the organization or ask if it might like to be involved in your project
- Request a speaker or additional information

For the most part, only local non-profit organizations or government entities are included here. Businesses and larger, national service organizations can also make good partners.
